DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Smith (US Patent 5,822,400) in view of Goode et al. (US Patent 6,163,272) and The ABC's of Debt Collection.

Smith discloses the claimed method for accessing debt collection information including comprising: storing of account data (e.g. 28, customer credit card company client's credit card account data such as amount due, account id, past due date and phone number; client the credit card company) in a database (16), data associated with an account of the clients of the collection agency (28 data, collection agency being the call center) including information relating to debt collection from one or more debtors (e.g. customer data); processing access requests with a server (16) from a user process (e.g. 30) controlled by a remote user; and processing data access request so client representative (dialer or agent handling call) is allowed access only to data items associated with an account belonging to that client (caller views data 28 only with call related account data) for remote review of collection status of the account of the client and the updating of account information (e.g. credit card account balance would be updated if a collection is made) after database is updated (updated at 40).

Smith discloses the claimed device except for credential processing to authenticate the identity of the client representative with a plurality of access tiers and is silent regarding client access to updated account information. Goode et al. discloses that it is known in the art to provide an authentication system which processes credentials of users to verify and control access to different levels of information for security purposes and The ABC's of Debt Collection discloses that it is known in the art of debt collection for the client to access their debtor's collection information so clients can track the collection agents progress and the status of debtor's accounts. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the method of Smith with the access by the client as taught by The ABC's of Debt Collection and plurality of access tiers with id authentication of Goode et al., in order to allow the client to track the collection agents progress and status of their debtor's accounts while controlling access to information for security purposes.

See prior office actions for further details. All other claimed limitations are either disclosed or inherent.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-21 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
